

Football in the Olympics?

Posted by Bishopfan23 - 2007/07/31 21:17

Hmmmmmmmm?

Re:Football in the Olympics?

Posted by janeraph - 2009/04/30 10:58

I am always punctual ;^Æö Don't be so modest +&Z† I am flatteredÇV†

I am on your side / ` wow power leveling, Well it dependsb Ù— Åµ It is up in the air- *3

That is the latest fashion. Ù/ AL,,> He always talks big. Ö;/9[

So far so good îM:b ý} Let's get to the point e •' Þ 66¹- Ãñí

For the old time sake. (çâsû,,bP
Let's forgive and forget. = MÍ

Knock it off. eÙ W A close call. *q†/C§ Ñ Neck and neck.

It is cool^Ò World of warcraft Power Leveling, It is neat*w† It is righteouswÙ†! RighteousÔf (

That will be the day. ÙH)1}† I am having a swell time. ©—^ Ã

If I were in your shoes...,œ / „,Ý... It is out of the question. Ù/ ÿý,,

He passed out. Ööï † Not a sound was heard j ¹ðó Don't panic. •L

It is a lot of junks. Ùý/ ›< • Over my dead body! ó I decline! ÒÝ

I got a big kick out of it. Ùö· ä Ã Don't try to brainwash me.+óÙ

Don't chicken out Be a man. •)† wow gold, You can count on us. `ïááV ì

His words carry a lot of weight Ö,,Ý^ ýÍ My mouth is watering. Aã4†

Don't dream away your time +Z!l4 Cheer up/we You are a chicken`/*Æ <

Misfortune might be a blessing in disguise ^Á1l %œâ^•

I don't think much of the movie £5q H7 Fasten your seat belt ù} `,,%oh&

I have a nice sum of money put away X† ' ± Don't trust to chance +°Ð

I just keep my head above water (;)ØÑ I have the right to know CãS

He stands out in the crowd. Ö(°œ-y>< He may show up soon. Òl
1Pe

you can eat and drink your fill. `ïâ=Á,, =Á,,• I sobbed sadly $Ã,,½ã@

Work fascinates me.I can look at it for hours. â} $v/ @+°â

The explanation made no sense. ÙãÊ« v™ It2s on me this time. Ù! ÷ç

Great minds think alike ñÃ@Áe Being criticized is awful «°yÃ Ûæ

One should love animals. They are so tasty. Ì*°ý"áí1"i à:fì^}

I2m glad I kept my fingers crossed. ^Øt ôýÙHxÐ

He is an operator. Ö/* 1a World of warcraft gold Don2t get on my nerves! • — Äæ

Let2s find a happy medium. ìØ/~ *~w,,žŒ It really turns me on. Ùä tK

That2s the stupidest thing l2ve ever heard! £/ ,0,, ",,ç (Ô Ö(8()

Don't sell yourself short + {êñ Try to have a mind of your own Z ;Á,,°

It slipped my mind. Ø† You have my word. ÝÁ It's a hit. Ùöç^x°"Í

Patience is a mark of confidence. Ã/êáÃ,, Íh°

You owe me one. ` *°Á As soon as possible! ŠëŠ}

Patience is a mark of confidence. Ã/êáÃ,, Íh°

What is worth doing is worth doing well.ê• É—Ð<←—»Z 1 š•ŠfZ}

Early rising makes for good health.éw ©Ž«Se.

It rained at intervals this month.Ù* ö0 è

A day is a miniature of eternity.(Emerson))/8R,,)q 1Ø

Your future depends on your dreams.So go to sleep.°(,,!ó³š`,, e @âØ/•a ?'

Maybe I could run some errands for you.„, ý: `Z>ÀH

Some useful English

Re:Football in the Olympics?

Posted by ranlin1r - 2009/07/17 04:50

Bidding for and hosting the Olympics successfully is, perhaps, the ultimate glory for a city. However, before transforming the dream into reality, the benefits and drawbacks of bidding for the Olympics should be weighed carefully.

Hosting the Olympics surely would bring about much gain to a city. Boom of the local economy, more jobs, and the possibility of generating income all sound extremely attractive to the municipal government. At the same time, better infrastructure, cleaner environment, enjoying the spectacular game with hundreds of sports elites and entertainment stars, and the opportunity of contacting people from all over the world also seem exciting to the citizens. Besides, the bidding will definitely promote the patriotic emotion and pride, as well as the moral behavior in local people. In most cases, bidding for the Olympics is well supported by both the public and the central government.

Unfortunately, this is not the entire view of the pretty picture. If looking from another angle, the Olympic bid might bring about some side-effects to a city. wow power leveling,

First of all, the environmental impacts, including the increasing exhaust fumes of cars, more pressure on water resources, huge amount of wasted leaflets and other materials used for public activities, are most probably neglected. In order to broaden the streets, some trees may have to be cut. Near the construction site, the tiny dust may linger in the air for a long time. Reduction of farmland may be caused by the need of setting up new sports centre or accommodation facilities. These environmental consequences can be especially serious in a resource-limited and densely-populated city in a third-world country.

Besides, if talking about the economic benefit, it should not be forgotten that a quick boosting may lead to bubble growth, which may easily crash. If not well managed and organized, the big event may not be so profitable, and the new facilities may be forever empty after the games. Yes, there have been cases that host cities ended up with enormous debts.

Finally, let's think about the low-income groups in the city. What will they get from the Olympics bidding? More tax, more fees, more expensive property prices, and higher cost of living. These definitely are not good news for them.

To bid or not to, this is a question. It is up to the choice of the municipal government, and the local public. After the decision, what they can do is to make the most of the benefit, and reduce the drawbacks to the least world of warcraft power leveling,

The excitement of Sydney 2000 Olympic Games lasted for a long time. 28 gold medals won by Chinese athletes dwarf our Asian neighbors, beat quite a few high countries of sports, and surprise the two superpowers—the United States and the Russian Federation. The great success clearly indicates that a new superpower of sports is in embryo.

Our success in the 27th Olympic Games is far beyond sports. First, the glory greatly enhances the international prestige of China. Through TV, people all over the world know more about New China, especially the dramatic progress made in the past two decades. Next, it greatly boosts the morale of our people. Billions of Chinese witnessed how the former ugly ducklings became China with the force of an avalanche. The successful stories of the Olympic Medalists fuel the ambition of millions of Chinese youth. Finally, it heightens our self-confidence and nationalism. China, a weak nation in sports in the past, has rapidly risen up and become one of the sports giants. Why couldn't she be a modernized China soon? What is more, the success has laid a firm foundation for Beijing to host the 2008 Olympic Games.

power leveling

The 27th Olympic Games was over, but the Olympic Spirit lives on. In the race for a better nation, there is no finish line. If we keep on working hard, the day will certainly come when China will be a powerful country with international prestige.

Olympics

=====